LOCAL AND COUNTY NEWS.

'Twas sleety and slippery on Saturday.

The ground is soft and giving. Mud boots are comfortable.

A new plank sidewalk has just been set down in front of Mrs. Jackson's residence.

A new stone pavement is being laid in front of the Poensatot property on Main street.

The Ladies' Library club will meet at Mr. G. S. Hutt's to-morrow (Thursday) afternoon, at 2 o'clock.

In Millwood township tickets to the Laclede gift ball are selling rapidly. The land comprising the two principal gifts is situated in that township.

The next term of the Probate Court will be held on the second Monday in January. Administrators having sale notices or final settlements to publish should remember that next week is the last that such notices can be inserted to be in time for the January term.

RELIGIOUS.—Revs. W. H. Burnham and D. F. Taylor, of Boone county, are preaching at the Baptist church in this place, and will hold service every evening during the present, and probably next week.

Rev. Father Walsh will preach at the court house, next Sunday evening at seven o'clock. The public is respectfully invited.

We think Ollie Bryson of the Louisiana Press was married recently, but when, to whom or where, we are in profound ignorance. We have not seen any notice of it. If the affair was noticed in the Press week before last, we didn't see it, and we only conclude he is married because "ye local" of that paper states in last week's issue that "the junior editor has returned home with the apron-string to which he has been tied for life." That may mean he's married, and it may not. If so, here's our list and welcome to the double ranks.

MURDER IN PIKE.—We learn from the Pike county papers of a fatal affray between two young men named respectively Sanderson and Hogue. They had at some previous time been witnesses in a case in court, and their evidence conflicted. On Monday of last week, while they were returning from a grange meeting, they got into a dispute, and this matter of their testimony was brought up. The result was a fight, in which Hogue knifed Sanderson, and he fell dead on the spot. Hogue received a severe wound over the left eye from a stone. They were cousins, both nephews of Collector Santerson, and stood well in the community. The tragedy occurred in Calumet township, near Dover church.

MRS. DEBORAH REYNOLDS.—In the Herald of October 22, in giving notice of the death of Mrs. Deborah Reynolds, we stated that no record of her age had been kept, but that she was at least one hundred years old. This was a mistake: she was born in South Carolina on the 4th day of February, 1778, being in the 96th year of her age when she died. Her family moved to Kentucky when she was four years old. She was married to Henry Reynolds on the 25th of September, 1806, and twenty-four years after her marriage they removed to this county. This was in the latter part of 1829. In her early life in Kentucky she lived in and around Boone's station, suffering many trials and privations among the hardy pioneers of those days, and made many hair-breadth escapes from the Indians. She was the mother of eleven children, nine of whom she saw grow into man and womanhood. She lived a devoted Christian, and died in the hope of eternal reward.

A PLEASANT TIME.—The Ladies' Social Library club gave one of their monthly evening sociables at Mr. P. G. Shelton's last Thursday evening, which was truly a delightful affair. It was the second monthly gathering of the club, and all present felt that the organization filled a void in our midst that has been long needed. The club hold weekly meetings every Thursday afternoon, but once a month an evening sociable is given at the residence of some one of the members, where the husbands of the married ladies, and a few invited single gentlemen for the benefit of the young lady members, are invited. The success with which the club has met so far surpasses the expectations of the originators, and we believe if the members continue to manifest the same interest that they now do, the club will not only make some of the long winter evenings hours sweet ones in our memory, but will bring about a friendly, social feeling of the most pleasant character, and assist in building up the oldest institution of our place—an institution in which but few heretofore have taken an interest. We refer to the Troy Social Library. The purchase of new books for this library, and an increase in the membership, is the principal object of the ladies club; but with business they have coupled pleasure, and that highest of all enjoyments, the social circle. The club and its company are highly enjoyable as such, but last Thursday evening, the kind host and hostess, with their charming daughter, Miss Willie, by their generous hospitality and endeavors to make every one feel at home gave a charm to the sociable that will long be cherished in the hearts of those present.

PERSONAL.—Deputy Collector Benson of Callaway county was here on business last week.

We acknowledge receipt of $1.50 for Henry Dillon through Collector Shaw. Thanks, Mr. Dillon.

Mrs. Grace Gillum, of Waverly township has been visiting friends at this place for the last two weeks.

Miss Lyle, of St. Louis, has been visiting the family of Dr. McFarland the past two weeks. She returned home this week.

The following gentlemen have called within the past week and paid up their subscriptions: Esquire I. H. Owens, Dr. Faulconer, Jesse Cropper, John Hutton, Dr. Hutton, Zach. Callaway and Jas. K. Cannon.

Our old friend, Esquire Joel Blanks, called the other day to pay up his subscription, and was very much astonished when we informed him that his paper was paid for nearly a year in advance. About six months before his time was out for the preceding year he insisted on not taking the money for another year, and that's how it came. He didn't remember it, and so was in to pay the second time, which we couldn't allow. We thought when he went out, that if all subscribers to newspapers were like him, publishers wouldn't have many delinquents on their books.

ROW IN THE COLORED SCHOOL.—Tal. Bragg a pupil in the colored school in this place, having an overplus of music in his soul, let some of it off by whistling in school one day last week. The teacher corrected him, but Tal. thought he was too large to submit to a reprimand, and ought to be allowed to do as he pleased. The teacher was equally satisfied that it was his duty to maintain order, and he intended to do so. Tal. suggested that he could leave the school, and sulking the action to the word started for the door. But he ran against a wall. The teacher wouldn't let him go, whereupon it is rumored he "lit into" the master, and they had a rough-and-tumble scuffle, in which Tal. came out second best. Simultaneous with the attack the windows of the school house flew up, and the way the children rolled out of there, screaming with all their might, was a scene for an artist who delights in deep shades. The row over, the children were ordered back into school, and the stentorian voice of the teacher was heard by a passer-by to exclaim, "I will have order in this school." The pupils evidently thought he meant what he said, as they had just witnessed one of his persuasive arguments. It was thought the affair would create trouble, as Tal. belongs to the elite of our colored population, but we hear that it has been amicably disposed of, and all is quiet in Africa.

ASSAULT AND BATTERY.—On Tuesday of last week, the usually placid bosom of the neighborhood of Mill creek, north of Auburn, in this county, was thrown into quite a commotion by an assault and battery case. The principals were Mr. D. Buchanan and Mr. Isaac Ellis. Mr. B. is a school teacher, and for some misbehavior expelled from school a son of Mr. Ellis. The son went home and informed his father of this fact, whereupon Mr. E. rode over to the school house to see Mr. D. about the matter, having previously stopped at Esquire Smiley's. When he arrived at the school house, Mr. B. was on the grounds playing ball with the boys. Mr. E. accosted him with, "Why did you dismiss my boy?" "For disobedience," was the reply. Our informant says Mr. E. then colored Mr. B. and struck him in the face. While attempting to defend himself—having secured a stick—Mr. B. was seized from behind by a nephew of Mr. E.—Jos. H. Ellis—and thrown on his back. Although Mr. E. was a much larger and stouter man than the teacher, he took advantage of this, and jumping on him pounded him severely. Mr. E. then mounted his horse and rode over to Esquire Smiley's, gave himself up, and was fined one dollar. When Mr. B. got to the Esquire's the case had been disposed of, and in the language of our informant, "the doors of justice were closed against him for the time being." We merely give the facts as they have been given us, without comment.

The following neat compliment is duly appreciated by us:
